

Still life collections

Little Domestics series

Smother series

The Little Domestics series are collections of slip cast works about things close to the home – daily routines, nurturing, nourishment, the domestic – and how often these essentials to the quality of human life are undervalued. The detailed, repetitive surface patterning asserts the feminine.

The Smother series - well, these are about rugby, the sometimes overwhelming over exposure of it. In these still life collections the green and pattern of the rugby field smother everything, right down to the domestic. I am a fan of sport and enjoy rugby, but in the professional era of the sport much of it has become tiresome, smothering.